

BIO

Benjamin W. Bellows, Epidemiology Doctoral Candidate, University of California, Berkeley

Ben Bellows is a doctoral student in epidemiology at the University of California, Berkeley, where his research focuses on evaluating private healthcare networks in East Africa. He currently splits his time between Uganda and California. His doctoral research, as technical adviser to Venture Strategies for Health and Development, is with the German Development Bank (KfW), the Uganda Ministry of Health, and Mbarara University of Science and Technology, Uganda. Project website: oba-uganda.net. In his free time, he serves on the board of the Northern California Peace Corps Association as well as the Vice-President of Friends of Ecuador, a 501c3 dedicated to continuing the spirit of Peace Corps service in Ecuador. Previously Ben worked at the CDC to develop training programs in HIV counseling and testing with national government partners in Kenya, Uganda, Zambia, and Namibia. From 1997-2000 he served in the US Peace Corps in Ecuador.