

BIO

Claudia Velasquez, Senior Program Officer for Research and M&E, Institute for Reproductive Health, Georgetown University

Claudia Velasquez works at the Institute for Reproductive Health at Georgetown University as a Senior Program Officer and M&E specialist. She has a degree in Public Health in the areas of population and family planning evaluation and over eight years of experience implementing, conducting research on reproductive health and HIV programs (on various themes including social marketing and adolescents) in Africa and Latin America. She is currently responsible for the management and supervision of behavioral research studies and programs in Guatemala as well as providing guidance and support for research activities in Rwanda.